Cummins, IISc tie up to sell bio-mass power

Diesel engines major Cummins India Limited (CIL) and the Indian Institute of Science (IISc) have entered into an agreement for commercialisation of bio-mass gasification power generation systems. Under the pact, CIL and IISc will work together for the development of power generation systems based on open down draft biomass gasification developed by ABETS, IISc.

According to the company, CIL will launch new generator systems which are designed to work on gassifiers modelled on the IISc technology.
